Solid Model Memories and Solid Scale

Welcome to Solid Model Memories – an internet site devoted to a unique hobby. One that is historical and enduring yet current and modern; one that is individualistic yet cooperative and supportive, and a group that spans both space and time. Such a site or club that at once offers to supply so many conflicting needs can only be described as, well, unique.

Solid Model Memories: Objectives

Essentially, this group is dedicated to the perpetuation or even the very renewal of a once great hobby “Solid Scale Modeling”. This implies a seriousness of purpose beyond mere enjoyment as a form of recreation. It begs the question: Why? This significance, the meaning of Solid Scale and how it relates today is best understood by reviewing the hobby’s history and contribution. This is thought especially necessary in this age of Impermanence and quick store-bought satisfactions. As a point of departure think plastic models as a similar but contrasting example of the antithesis of Solid Model Memories and Solid Scale Models.

Solid Models: Defined

With a plastic kit all is a given. The scale. Material. The degree of detailing. Even the model. But, in comparison, Solid Scale Models – carved wooden and generally “scratch built” miniatures of aircraft (or ships and cars as some members have pursued) – demand time, research, ingenuity, skill and innovation; but mostly as opposed to the alternative, time.
